One thing that occurred to me as we drove through the suburbs and cities of the United States was that if the country's population was growing so rapidly, surely there would be some large communities that would be dramatically expanding. But there are no cities and towns that are growing rapidly. The population of the U.S. actually fell between 2014 and 2015. And the total number of people living in the U.S. now slightly exceeds the total population of the entire country just before the Great Depression. And some of the growth is a result of immigration (which hasn't been growing very much recently). And I'm guessing that some of the
