Make sure to head on over to the DxO website and check out our comparison article between the 11 best image-editing applications – or if you just want our top picks, then simply head to our roundup! If you’ve been searching for a good image-editing software, then you definitely need to check out Lightroom 6 – which won our Editor’s Choice Award for Best Image Editing and Editing Software. This top-notch photo-editing software is now available for both Windows and Mac, and offers a whole lot of features for photographers or graphic designers who wish to improve their images in a couple of clicks. This DxO Labs camera RAW converter can also be used to convert photos in camera, and offers a plethora of features – such as color correction and sharpening. The application is also equipped with a ton of in-depth photo editing tools, like crop, white balance, red-eye removal, exposure control, lens correction, and noise reduction. The DxO Optics Pro Software – which was awarded with a Silver Award in our Best of CES 2017 – is a powerful photo-manipulation software that allows you to retouch, add effects, correct exposure, change lens and more. The application is currently available for both Windows and Mac platforms, and it boasts of a strong photo-editing arsenal. If you're in need of a one-stop shop for your desktop retouching and photo editing needs, then iMovie is definitely one of the best video-editing tools in the market today. This versatile and affordable piece of software also excels when it comes to producing those quick home videos. This video editing software from Apple can even be used for free to create home videos, although a $4.99 annual membership fee is required to unlock the advanced features and unlimited export-target. With Apple's iMovie, users can easily combine multiple files into one video, trim, crop, add music, titles, and transitions. They also have the ability to add photos or drawings, choose a custom background and adjust the brightness, saturation, exposure, and hue. Pricing for iMovie is fairly competitive compared to the number of tools at your disposal, and it offers free 30-day trials of its apps for Mac, iPhone, and iPad. If you're looking for a good all-around video-editing software with outstanding image-

Saturday, June 15, 2017 "Hi. I am Kevin Crabbe, a retired trial attorney from San Francisco. I am writing this letter because I want to help you get a good job, and become the person you want to be. If I can help you in some small way, please let me know." I loved this letter because he tells it like it is. "Whether the issue is work, relationship, problem or anything else, knowledge is power." As an attorney, a college professor, an entrepreneur and as a divorced father of three, Kevin knows a thing or two about how to navigate the turbulent waters of life. His own journey is one of a successful career (medical malpractice), and a failed marriage and fatherhood. His story is one of a man who went from bottom to top in his chosen field, and all he asks is for people to give him a chance to have a positive impact on their own path. "Hi. I am Mike Mullen. I am a recent graduate of Bentley University, a 4.0 student. I have a slightly different perspective because I am half-white, half-African American. I also went to a very high-end school that allowed me to learn more about myself and my own history, and who I am compared to other people in the world. Please read what I have to say with an open mind. I became a Black Panther in high school. When I finished my first semester of my freshman year in college, I did the math on my FAFSA. I realized, I would go into debt, as much as $40,000 a year for three years. I was very determined to change the system, and one way I could do that was become a public speaker. I was never a talker, and I had very little self-confidence. I had to
