Game play is simple. Each puzzle has two stages, a pre-stage with instructions and three blocks and a post stage with a single block. Your objective is to get the cube all the way across the board from the bottom to the top. The blocks are light grey with a grid of side-connecting lines around them. The post-stage background is the Omnicube, which has a cross shape. This same background will appear for the entire game. Each block is numbered. When you click on a block, its number will be highlighted. Clicking on a block that is numbered will align that block to the grid and sliding any blocks on either side of the affected block. The goal is to line up all the blocks from the bottom to the top of the grid. To get a three-star score, the puzzle must be completed with a single block in the top row. This will be highlighted in orange. Scoreboards for the game are not tracked or kept. Clearing a level with two stars will advance to the next level. Clearing with three stars will bring you into the top 10 scorers for the game. Clearing levels with a star and reaching level 150 will give you achievements. Leaderboards are updated weekly. Top scorers are given weekly updates if their scores are within the top 10. The most active persons on the game are given this top-list update. Scores will remain on the top-list until they are reset or updated. Each person has their own dashboard with their score, level, and a list of achievements. I have been playing the game for a while now. It is a fun game with good music. The only problem I have is the blocks are too easy to move them in to position. I would have to say give this game 2 stars. (DS #6959) I thought I would try this out, even though I have never been a big fan of block games. I played this in the freebie app and it could have used some work. I'm a fan of the old java games. The music is really nice and they did a great job with this one. They have a new android version on and I plan to check it out too. Good job! (DS #694) I'll have to try

What's new in Omnicube:

stars O2O's Elite training ($400 for group 1&2 and $500 for group 3 & 4)* Class level depends on trainer ability (programmed or doing more training than the trainer can do)Group 1 and 2 get full specialized nose to tail workout which includes massages and stretching. Some exercises take around 10 mins while others can take half hour to an hour per session. This package contains group 1 and

2. Group 3 and 4 get one set of lower body upper body (where the trainer can do the most of the exercises) to supplement trainer workout and warm-ups which takes around 15 mins.- Weekly nutrition consultation with O2O's pharmacist cost $15 per seminar. (No set fee)- Weather dependent training $50 for one week.- Offer is valid only for a specific period (11 months) Price excludes GST. Pay at the gym If you prefer, trainers can do that part of the work for you. You pay $50 for the class and trainer once a month. You pay between $45 to $50 a month. The price is up to $10 less than the 6 hour class. An advantage is that, you have a trainer that is good in "strengthening" and "fitness". The trainer will program and monitor your training for you. You will be given the body parts you want worked. Maybe not the shoulder or arm, but will be given a program that targets your weakness. By "lower body", it means the trainer will work your "gastrocnemius", "quads", "calves", "hamstrings", and "hamstrings". The "upper body" includes the chest, shoulders, and core. So, the trainer will work your glutes, chest, and shoulders. Your focus will be on the areas of your training. If your main training focus is mainly on legs, trainer will not put emphasis on your glutes. And this focus is kept the same for all classes. The other advantage is the trainer can give guidance to achieve correct form while working on your weak areas. The trainer will also show you to keep your balance while doing the exercise. The trainer will apply maximum resistance training with no risk of injury. You can also do a Swiss ball or similar exercises with your trainer. The trainer has more than 20 years experience in the fitness business and is a former fitness competitor. His knowledge in adjusting the style of strength training for different people, and the ability to formulate
