For some reason I can't get it to work. If I set the textfield as an IBOutlet, I can set the text with: self.myTextField.text = @"2.3"; But I'm trying to dynamically set it from an array and the format I am using is: NSString *myField = [NSString stringWithFormat:@"%f", [arc4random()%100]]; And trying to set it with: [myArray objectAtIndex:1]; self.myTextField.text = [myArray stringByAddingPercentString:@"%"]; A: You cannot set text of UITextField (and other UILabels) directly through string format. The reason is that UILabel does not actually store the text. It only displays the text, and the text displayed is static, and cannot be modified in run-time (let's say you want to display a twitter feed on your iPhone, and then you want to display your friend's twitter feed when they are online instead of yours). On the other hand, when you create a UILabel, you do it through the initWithText: method, which will give you a UILabel which, with the help of the - (void) setText: method, you
