The objective of this study was to purify cellulase from Trichoderma reesei QM 9414 by affinity chromatography on a cross-linked chitosan. Chitosan was synthesized by adding 5.00% (w/w) glutaraldehyde (V(AcCHO)/V(CCHO)) to CS at pH 5.0 and by mixing the solution for 24 h at 4 degrees C. The cross-linking reaction of chitosan was confirmed by UV-visible, (1)H NMR, FT-IR, DSC, and X-ray diffraction analysis. Maximum cellulase activity was observed at pH 6.5. The cellulase adsorbed onto the cross-linked chitosan, whose K(d) was 0.099 microM. The immobilized cellulase was stored for 1 month at 4 degrees C without loss in activity. The immobilized cellulase was recovered and reused for 5 runs without loss in enzyme activity. The affinity sorbent was more stable and reusable than the cellulose immobilized on Sepharose 4B.We need a little more conversation about what got us here. We read about the US government's surveillance of US citizens, about the idea of snooping on citizens who are suspected of thought crime and about the idea of someone sitting in a tower in Germany, cataloguing every single person's private opinions and actions. Just the other day, we heard that massive government snooping on our data has a cumulative effect. The more we talk about it, the more it seems to
